

Jared Goff

QB Cal Jr.

Height: 6'4" Weight: 215 Arms: 33.5" Hands: 9"

Combine: 40 yd Dash: 4.82 3 Cone: 6.86 Vert: 30.5"

Pros:

- Very active feet in the pocket
- Great pocket mobility
- Great footwork
- Great timing on comeback routes
- Ball at ready, compact release
- Good arm strength
- Very good footwork
- Never loses fundamentals
- Can throw players open
- Shows ability to read defense
- Looks safeties off

Cons:

- Feathers deep ball too much
- Scheme causes transition issues
- Hasn't taken a snap from center
- Play fake is lackluster
- Can hold on to the ball too long
- Scheme determines too many throws

Jared Goff is that latest quarterback to try and transition from a spread attack to an NFL offense. Goff has all the markers of a high caliber NFL starter. Reminiscent of Derek Carr two years ago, Goff is tall and lanky and throws a very good ball. Goff is incredibly technically sound in the pocket and is one of the best pocket manipulators in recent years. He has impeccable footwork and is nearly always on balance, especially under pressure. Goff is a good athlete and can move inside or out of the pocket. All of this, plus great accuracy makes him an incredibly appealing prospect. His hands aren't the biggest and he has some issues with deep balls to the outside, but Goff is very polished and should have moderate success starting in the NFL early on. The issue will be taking snaps from center and making more complicated reads in the NFL. His simplified attack in college limits some of his skills from translating to the NFL but Goff has clearly worked on his craft to limit this. He'll be a successful starter at the next level.