

Josh Doctson

WR TCU Rs. Sr.

Height: 6'2" Weight: 202 Arms: 32"

Combine: 40 yd Dash: 4.50 3 Cone: 6.84 20 YD Shuttle: 4.08 Vert: 41"

Pros:

- Smooth runner who slips by defenders
- Doesn't lose too much speed changing directions
- Good lateral agility
- Does a good job setting up the corner and then cutting
- Good leaping ability can get contested balls
- Decent route runner

Cons:

- Initial burst is average, really has to ramp up into route
- Rounds tops of routes
- Not a great blocker, not very strong either

Josh Doctson is another number two receiver in a draft full of number two receivers. He's got good size, hands and body control as well as good leaping ability. What he doesn't have is explosion and top end speed. If he did, he would be a lock first round draft pick. Doctson is the kind of player who will go up and get contested balls down the field and run good routes underneath. It doesn't look like he has the deep speed to challenge a secondary vertically however. Doctson's best attribute is probably his loose hips. He's a smooth glider who fools defenders into committing the wrong way and then cutting the other. He doesn't lose too much speed in and out of routes so he gains separation in other ways than speed. Will be a good receiver, but can't carry an offense. Solid second round pick.