

DORIAN JOHNSON

PITT

Height: 6'5"

Weight: 300

Arms: 35.25"

Combine:

40 yd Dash: 5.27

3 Cone: 8.39

20 yd Shuttle: 5.09

Vert: 30"

Pros:	Cons:
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>- Big bodied, power blocker</li> <li>- Pull well and moves well in space</li> <li>- Good feet, incredibly long arms and big hands</li> <li>- Wins leverage battle, keeps pads low</li> <li>- Keep feet and base</li> <li>- Good pass protector, sets pocket depth</li> <li>- Adept at finding players on second level</li> <li>- Aware player with head on swivel</li> <li>- Good body composition, strong legs</li> </ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>- A bit stiff in movement but not bad</li> <li>- Good but not great at most things</li> <li>- Leans a bit too much in pass protection</li> <li>- Can be aggressive, open to swim move</li> <li>- Lacks top end speed and agility</li> </ul>

Summary: Dorian Johnson is a three-year starter at Pitt and the first Pitt offensive lineman to start a game as a true freshman since 2006 (Joe Thomas). Johnson was named to the first-team All-ACC this year after leading the Pitt offensive attack that was one of the most prolific in recent years. Johnson has the prototype mold for a left guard, with great size and good athleticism and incredibly long arms. He looks comfortable and natural pulling, as well as blocking in man and zone schemes. Johnson is a powerful run blocker with tremendous upside. He's strong and plays with great technique in all phases of his game. The one knock on him is that he's a bit too aggressive in pass protection at times and will lunge at defenders on occasion. He also sometimes slows his feet in pass protection if he isn't threatened immediately. Despite this he is a very aware, intelligent player and it's hard to catch him unprepared. Johnson does a superb job finding blockers on the second level and he has enough speed to get out in front of plays and make a difference. He's a plug and play starter from day one and will upgrade the interior of any offensive line immediately. His pass blocking may need time to mature but he's a ready-made starter with pro-bowl potential. Worth a low first round grade based on film.